Candice Lin Getty x Frieze Commission

October 11 – 15, 2023

The Regent's Park

Commissioned by Frieze and Getty, Los Angeles-based interdisciplinary artist Candice Lin will present a new work, employing her use of traditional indigo-dyeing techniques, demonstrated in works such as Seeping, Rotting, Resting, Weeping (2021), and continuing her research into the impact of scientific taxonomies. The commission will take the form of large-scale kites dyed with natural pigments, drawing on Asian kite-making traditions, which will be displayed at the fair and activated by performers in the Regent's Park. Lin's research on the practice of castration in human culture as in animal husbandry and companionship will be echoed by the negative spaces created by the central holes distinctive of traditional Korean fighter kites' design. The kites' surface decoration will feature mythological and animal imagery while referencing 19th century representations of eunuchs at the imperial Chinese court.

Rethinking these histories from an inter-species perspective, Lin's use of kites as a medium—the first time the artist has done so—also engages the long enmeshment of art and science, reminiscent of historical explorations of aerial devices. A public kite workshop co-taught with Yaeun Choi will invite visitors to create and fly their own kites.

The commission is an early collaboration toward the next PST ART. Opening September 2024, PST ART: 'Art & Science Collide' will feature more than 818 artists in more than 50 coordinated exhibitions, with project topics ranging from climate change, environmental justice and Indigenous knowledge to artificial intelligence, past and future cosmologies and the frontiers of bioengineering.
