In collaboration with Dep Art, we present a solo show by artist Wolfram Ullrich (Würzburg 1961. Lives and works in Stuttgart). His career began in the 1980s and steadily evolved into more complex research that analytically explored the work of art. The artist himself says "every painting is also an object" and it is the object in space and its perspective perception that his research focuses on. The painted but steel-constructed works engage the viewer in a summation of the most interesting artistic currents that precede him, from minimalism to optical to constructivism.

wolfram ullrich

würzburg, germany, 1961 – lives and works in stuttgart, germany,

Wolfram Ullrich's works are built on a process of conceptual planning and arduous, precise manual work, in addition to establishing dialogues with the fundamentals of concrete art, such as the sense of color defined only by itself, the form that obeys the laws of geometry and the direct relationship between the body and its materiality and plasticity. However, Ullrich goes further by creating volumes and structures that seem to escape walls, challenging notions of perspective and illusion. Made of a rigid material such as steel or acrylic, Ullrich's monochromatic surfaces testify not only to the unshakable materiality itself but also to the optical phenomena that subject the works to the moving perspective of each observer and make them seem to float in space.

Wolfram Ullrich graduated in Visual Arts and Painting from Staatliche Akademie der Bildenden Künste Stuttgart (1986) and in Art History from Universität Stuttgart (1985), both institutions in Germany, his home country. The artist started to challenge the bidimensional logic of painting and the politics of perspective in the 1980s, when he participated in his first exhibitions in Europe.

Among his recent exhibitions, the individual ones in the galleries Une (Switzerland, 2012) and Denise René (France, 2011), and the collective ones "Mouvement et Lumière", at Fondation Villa Datri (France, 2012), "Interferences", in Vasarely Foundation (France, 2011), and "Beyond Painting", at Bohuslan Museum (Sweden, 2009). Over the last few years, Ullrich was awarded by the Messmer Foundation (Germany, 2010) and by the Helmut Kraft Foundation (Stuttgart, 2009). His work is exhibited regularly in the main art fairs, like Art Basel (Basilea and Miami), FIAC (Paris), Art Cologne and Zona Maco (Mexico City). Since 2013 the artist has been represented by Galeria Raquel Arnaud, which held the exhibition "Planar" (2013), Ullrich's first solo show in Brazil.
